

Project Delivery Management

Strategic Project Management Practice

Strategic projects that deliver new products, new functionality, new technology, or new business models are key contributing factors to the future success of your organization. In delivering your projects, you are not only challenged by the nature of these new opportunities but often, you are also dealing with aggressive timelines, complex environments and limited resources. When embarking on large scale strategic initiatives or projects, organizations often need a project management professional with the experience, and the managerial and interpersonal skills, to ensure that risks are identified and issues addressed in a timely manner. Interis' experienced team of Project Management Professional (PMP) certified project managers have a wealth of capability managing large scale business and IT projects in both the financial and public sectors.

BENEFITS OF WORKING WITH INTERIS FOR PROJECT DELIVERY MANAGEMENT

Founded on industry best practices, a project management professional from Interis can ensure project success by:

- Defining clear and effective governance, roles and responsibilities within the project.
- Equipping you with documented processes and tools, optimized from best-practices, that have been proven to contribute to project success.
- Providing management with accurate information and regular communication, enabling you to make well-informed decisions more quickly.
- Identifying risks well before they become an issue.

Our Strategic Delivery Management services assist in maximizing the realization of business objectives by ensuring your project is successfully completed and by assuming responsibility for the execution and delivery of committed deliverables.

Our professionally certified experts have sound business acumen and demonstrated experience in knowing what works best in complex initiatives and environments. Their breadth of expertise spans project management, information technology and business, and ensures that gaps between these areas can be easily bridged.

Interis Project Delivery Management is based on industry best practices, particularly those embodied in PMBoK®, and augmented to meet the specific needs of your organization.

This is done by leveraging our clients methodologies, tools and templates as well as Interis' extensive knowledge inventory.

Our professionals can take a project from the planning phase right through to close out, or can assume responsibility of the project wherever it is in the lifecycle.

For every project management knowledge area, Interis professionals will ensure clarity of scope definition, responsibilities, processes, accurate reporting, alignment of stakeholders and project team and visibility to progress and risks. We work closely with our clients to achieve the desired outcome, and can also mentor internal staff to assume responsibilities.

The knowledge transferred to your organization will prove to be invaluable as your project progresses.

A proven track record in Project Delivery Management

Interis has 10 years experience delivering large scale projects.

- For a major infrastructure / electronic services delivery project representing an investment of over one billion dollars, Interis professionals managed the successful delivery of multiple releases of the infrastructure components. They developed and implemented the governance model, the program charter, and managed the cost, schedule, change, and risk project components while ensuring compliance with federal IT policies and direction for accreditation purposes.
- As part of a major infrastructure initiative, Interis managed a multi-million dollar project, providing project planning, project execution and project delivery expertise. Our consultants supported the deployment of an enhanced and more secure Public Key Infrastructure (PKI), while aligning business and project objectives. Interis provided the necessary expertise in organizational change and stakeholder relationship management, collaborative IT delivery and facilitation across multiple organizations to achieve project planning objectives and consensus.
- For a major Canadian bank, Interis was responsible for a portfolio of projects to address risks related to the Basel Accord. Our professionals were involved from end-to-end including: definition of the business case, project charter, implementation plan, monitoring plan through to project closeout. Also, our professionals implemented a program to self evaluate operational risks and level of compliance.
